

DYING MAN SAYS WOMAN HE SHOT HELPED ROB HIM

Ferrera, in Bellevue, Tells Police New Version of Eleventh Street Tragedy.

Charges of attempted suicide, felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law were entered to-day against young Adolfo Ferrera when he regained consciousness in Bellevue Hospital and told the story of a game old to the underworld that worked out differently than its alleged engineers had expected. Last night Ferrera, a barber, eighteen years old, was found in a room at No. 217 East Eleventh street, suffering from two bullet wounds, after detectives had followed the crimson trail left behind by a woman who fell exhausted at Third avenue and Tenth street. The woman was Lillian Gray, sometimes called "Mrs. Ratsy" in the neighborhood because it is with one "Ratsy" she is frequently seen, and the room in Eleventh street was hers.

The woman said at the hospital that Ferrera had tried to hold her up and that, enraged because she had only a dollar, he had shot her and himself. But the police are more inclined to believe the young barber's version of the affair, taken in the form of an antimorism statement.

He said he was walking through East Eleventh street when a young man on the stoop of No. 217 called to him. The young man was "Ratsy." Soon a woman came out of the house and the young man on the stoop introduced his new friend. Then he walked away.

"Come inside," he says the woman invited. She remembered she had lost her key and suggested that they go through the basement. They went very slowly through the dark, damp corridor and, finally, up a flight of narrow stairs. The woman opened the door and Ferrera followed her into a shabby room. He closed his eyes for a moment, and when he opened them again a revolver was leveled at his head. The face behind the revolver, he declares, was that of "Ratsy."

"What are you doing here with my wife?" he quotes "Ratsy" as saying. "I'll just get even by taking every nickel you've got."

There was $1 in Ferrera's pocket, and the barber says, "Ratsy" grinned as he transferred the money to his own. "Now get!" he directed.

Ferrera picked up his overcoat and slid his hand into the right hand pocket. When it came out again it held a revolver. The woman seized his arm, screaming that he should not shoot "Ratsy." There was a struggle, in which "Ratsy" took no share. He was too busy putting distance between himself and the other man's weapon.

The gun popped twice and the woman screamed in a different way. She staggered from the room.

The barber was sure he had killed her. He had a vision of himself on trial for murder, of his conviction, and saw himself as he sat in the electric chair with the straps pressing on his arms. Turning the revolver upon himself, he sent the two remaining bullets into his body.

Ferrera has little chance of recovery, the doctors say, but the woman may live. The police are looking for "Ratsy."

BLAMES INDIGESTION PILLS FOR HER DEATH.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 18.—Coroner J. Gilbert Calhoun was asked to-day to investigate the mysterious death of Miss Sarah R. Robinson, forty-four, who died at her boarding place in Glastonbury last night, a few minutes after she had been carried there, unconscious, by Samuel R. Little, her cousin, with whom she had started on a carriage drive two hours previously.

Medical Examiner Richards of Glastonbury was unable to restore the woman to consciousness, and because of the unusual circumstances he has turned the affair over to the Coroner.

Calhoun may order an autopsy to try to substantiate the theory of Little that Miss Robinson died as the result of taking indigestion tablets, or of an attack of heart failure.

In the carriage in which she and Little were driving were found a number of tablets which were thought to be digestive wafers, though lacking any odor or taste of peppermint, which Miss Robinson usually used.

TO BUY POE COTTAGE.

Board Votes to Re-establish It in Nearby Park.

The former little home of the poet Edgar Allan Poe—known as the "Poe Cottage" in Fordham, is to be preserved by the City of New York. The Board of Estimate to-day voted to purchase the cottage and move it from its present site in Fordham and re-establish it in Poe Park, not remote from the present location of the cottage. For this purpose the board appropriated $2,000 for purchase and $2,000 for removal.

Borough President Miller of the Bronx called the attention of the Board to the fact that blasting operations near the cottage are endangering it. Only the other day, President Miller said, a huge boulder was blown over the cottage. "Had that rock hit the little house it would have smashed it into splinters," said he.
